Advanced Contracts: Strategy Analysis and Advice

USC Law School

Prof. Gillian K. Hadfield

ghadfield@law.usc.edu

This package contains sample materials from my Advanced Contracts course, which I first taught at the University of Toronto in 1997 and have taught since then at USC and Columbia Law Schools. It includes a Course Outline, the Self-Assessment Form I ask students to submit after each assignment, a document that articulates and asks students to assess their progress on Teaching Goals, two sample case studies (Sun Chemical and YoGo International) together with a sample memo (with comments from me that are posted for all students to read) and sample client comment from students serving in client groups. It also includes students' two-page reflections on what they think they learned in the course.

You are free to use the case studies with proper attribution of their source.

You may use any materials from the Course Outline, Self-Assessment Form and Teaching Goals as you wish, no attribution necessary.

Please contact me if you wish to use materials which were originally written by students: memos, opinion letters, client comments and individual reflections.
